Understanding ADHD in Women

1. The Unique Experience of Women with ADHD

ADHD is frequently misdiagnosed or underdiagnosed in women due to differences in symptoms. Women may display less hyperactivity and more inattentiveness, leading to their struggles being attributed to other issues such as anxiety or depression. Recognizing these unique experiences is the first step toward understanding and managing ADHD.

2. Common Symptoms

Women with ADHD may exhibit the following symptoms:

- Inattention: Difficulty focusing, being easily distracted, or forgetting tasks.
