History of Art Deco

Art Deco was born in a period marked by significant social and cultural changes. Following World War I, the world saw a surge in economic prosperity, leading to a fascination with modernity and luxury. The 1925 International Exposition of Modern Decorative and Industrial Arts in Paris showcased the Art Deco style and is often considered the pivotal moment for the movement.

The term "Art Deco" itself was derived from this exposition, where a variety of artistic disciplines came together, including architecture, fashion, and visual arts. The movement was heavily influenced by various sources, including:

- Art Nouveau: With its organic forms and flowing lines, Art Nouveau laid the groundwork for the geometric stylings of Art Deco.
- Constructivism: The Russian movement emphasized functionality and modern materials, which resonated with Art Deco designers.
- Egyptian Revival: Following the discovery of King Tutankhamun's tomb in 1922, Egyptian motifs became popular in Art Deco design.
- Futurism: This movement celebrated speed and technology, which were significant themes in Art Deco.

As a result of these influences, Art Deco emerged as a dynamic style that celebrated both the past and the future.
