Candidates for 2023 Elections

This election cycle features a diverse pool of candidates across various positions. Here's a brief overview of the key races to watch:

Denver Mayor

The race for mayor is one of the most significant contests in Denver this year. Candidates include:

- Candidate A: A moderate who emphasizes public safety and economic growth.
- Candidate B: A progressive advocate focused on affordable housing and climate change.
- Candidate C: An independent candidate who champions transparency and local businesses.

City Council Elections

Denver's City Council plays a crucial role in shaping local policies. This year, several districts will have competitive races. Notable candidates include:

- District 1: Incumbent vs. challenger focused on community engagement.
- District 2: Two candidates with differing views on urban development.

Other Key Positions

In addition to the mayor and city council, the following positions will also be contested:

- Clerk and Recorder: Responsible for maintaining election integrity.
- District Attorney: Overseeing legal proceedings and public safety initiatives.
- School Board Members: Influencing education policy and funding.

Ballot Measures

In addition to candidates, voters will decide on several important measures. Here's a quick look at the key ballot initiatives:

1. Measure 1: Proposed increase in property taxes to fund affordable housing projects.
2. Measure 2: A measure to establish a new public transportation fund aimed at improving infrastructure.
3. Measure 3: An initiative to legalize recreational use of certain substances.

Understanding Ballot Measures

- Proponents: Groups that support the measure, often providing arguments about its benefits.
- Opponents: Those against the measure, highlighting potential downsides or unintended consequences.
- Voter Information Sessions: Attend local meetings where these measures are discussed for an in-depth understanding.

Voting Methods

Denver offers multiple ways for residents to cast their votes, ensuring accessibility for all:

In-Person Voting

- Early Voting: Available at designated polling places from October 16 to November 3.
- Election Day Voting: Polls open from 7:00 AM to 7:00 PM on November 7.

Mail-In Voting

- Ballot Delivery: All registered voters will receive a mail-in ballot. Ensure your registration is up to date to receive your ballot.
- Completing Your Ballot: Follow the instructions carefully and return your ballot through the mail or at a drop-off location.

Ballot Drop Off Locations

Denver will have numerous secure drop-off locations for voters to submit their completed ballots. Check the Denver Elections Division website for a list of locations and their hours of operation.

Voter Resources

To assist voters in making informed decisions, a variety of resources are available:

1. Denver Elections Division Website: Official source for registration, ballot details, and voting locations.
2. Candidate Forums: Attend local forums to hear directly from candidates about their platforms and policies.
3. Voter Guides: Non-partisan organizations often provide comprehensive voter guides summarizing candidate positions and ballot measures.

Community Engagement

Engaging with the community can enhance your understanding of local issues. Consider:

- Joining Local Groups: Participate in civic organizations focused on local governance.
- Attending Town Halls: Engage in discussions about pressing issues affecting your neighborhood.
